NURSE CORPS DIRECTOR HERE TODAY

CAPT Alene B. Duerk, director of the Navy Nurse Corps, will serve as review official today at Recruit Training Command for Women. After the 10 a.m. ceremonies, CAPT Duerk will meet with parents of the graduating recruits. She received her bachelor of science degree in 1948 from Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing at Western Reserve University in Cleveland after having been commissioned an ensign in the inactive reserve on Jan. 23, 1943. She entered active duty that March 23.

Article Transcription:

“Breaking with two centuries of tradition, the Navy named its first woman admiral Thursday; Alene Bertha Duerk a Defiance, Ohio, native who joined the service 29 years ago.

Miss Duerk, the 52-year-old director of the Navy Nurse Corps, was nominated along with 49 male captains for promotion to rear admiral. The nominations were approved by President Nixon and are subject to Senate confirmation.

Her selection leaves only one male bastion remaining in the armed forces—the Marine Corps, which has yet to promote a woman to star rank.

Since taking office, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has been pressuring the services to promote women to star and flag rank. Within the past two years, the Air Force has named two women generals and the Army four.

Capt. Duerk, who received her medical training from the Toledo, Ohio, Hospital School of Nursing, joined the Navy Nurse Corps as an ensign in January 1943.

At the time her promotion was announced, she was on leave and en route to her mother's home in Holgate, Ohio.

Reached by telephone, her mother said she never thought her daughter would ever become an admiral, but added, “We're very happy for her.”

During World War II Capt. Duerk served in naval hospitals in Portsmouth, Va., and Bethesda, Md. In the closing days of the war she was assigned to the hospital ship Benevolence in the Pacific where she cared for the sick and wounded from the final assaults against Japan.

After the war, she was released from the service but remained in the Naval Reserve only to be called to active duty in June, 1951. She served in various nursing and hospital administrative posts in the 1960s and was named director of the Nurse Corps in May 1970.”

Navy's first female admiral blazed trail for women

Rear Admiral Alene Duerk expanded multiple areas of Navy's Nurse Corps.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Rear Admiral Alene Duerk, the Navy's first female admiral, who became a trailblazer as the Navy opened up more opportunities for women, has died. She was 98 years old.

Duerk died on July 21, according to a news release last week from the Naval History and Heritage Command. No cause of death was given. She had been living in a suburb of Orlando, Florida.

"Alene Duerk was a strong and dedicated trail blazer who embodied the very principles that continue to guide Navy Medicine today," said Vice Adm. Forrest Faison, Navy surgeon general, in a statement. "She will forever be remembered as a servant leader who provided the best care to those who defended our nation, honoring the uniform we wear and the privilege of leadership."

Duerk was born in Defiance, Ohio, in 1920. After graduating from nursing school at Toledo Hospital in 1941, she entered the U.S. Naval Reserve and was appointed an ensign in the Nurse Corps. During World War II, she worked on a hospital ship off the Marshall Islands in the Pacific and later treated Allied troops who had been prisoners of war.

"The time I was aboard the hospital ship and we took the prisoners of war, that was something I will never forget," Duerk told the Library of Congress' Veteran's History Project. "That was the most exciting experience of my whole career."

With the war ended, Duerk was released from active service in 1946 while she was stationed at Naval Hospital Great Lakes. She earned a bachelor's degree at Western Reserve University in Cleveland and then returned to active duty in 1951 as a nursing instructor at Naval Hospital Corps School in Portsmouth, Va. Over the decades, she would serve in hospitals in Chicago, San Diego, Washington, and Yokosuka, Japan.

She was appointed director of the Navy Nurse Corps in 1970. In her role, she expanded the Navy's areas of nursing into pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, ambulatory care, and anesthesia.

President Nixon approved her selection as the first female rear admiral in 1972. She retired three years later but remained an advocate for Navy nursing for decades more.

Duerk never married and had no children, but she was close to her nephews and niece, according to the Orlando Sentinel.

"She was a born leader," said her nephew, Stephen Granzow.
