educated at Charleston college, received his medical degree there in 1852, and removed to New York city in that year, and served at Bellevue hospital. He has also been professor of obstetrics and diseases of women in the College of physicians and surgeons in New York city, surgeon to the Women's hospital in New York, and consulting physician to the Nursery and child's hospital and St. Mary's hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y. In 1879 he was president of the American gynecological society, and he is an honorary member of the obstetrical society of London and a corresponding secretary of that of Berlin. Dr. Thomas has contributed largely to medical literature, and is the author of a "Practical Treatise on Diseases of Women," which has been translated into several foreign languages (Philadelphia, 1868).

THOMAS, Thomas, soldier, b. in 1755; d. in Harrison, Westchester co., N. Y., 29 May, 1824. He commanded a regiment in 1776, and participated in the battles of Harlem and White Plains. In the autumn of 1776 the enemy burned his house, took his aged father a prisoner to New York, and confined him in the provost jail, where he died through their inhuman treatment. Col. Thomas was an active partisan officer till the peace, except during a brief term of captivity; and was afterward frequently a member of the legislature.

THOMES, William Henry, author, b. in Portland, Me., 5 May, 1824. He was educated in the public schools of Boston, worked in a printing-office, and was afterward connected with various journals as reporter and editor. He went to California in 1843, and again in 1849, subsequently visiting Honolulu, the East Indies, and Australia, and contributing articles upon his travels to various magazines. Mr. Thomes was the first president of the New England society of California pioneers. He is the author of "The Gold-Hunters of Australia" (Boston, 1869); "Life in the East Indies" (1870); "A Whaler's Adventures" (1871); "The Gold-Hunters in Europe" (1872); "A Slaver's Adventures" (1873); "Running the Blockade" (1874); "The Belle of Australia" (1885); "On Land and Sea" (1886); and "Lewey and I" (1887).

THOMPSON, Albert, artist, b. in Woburn, Mass., 18 March, 1853. He became a pupil of William E. Norton in 1873, and in 1872 and 1875 travelled in Europe. During 1880-'1 he studied in Paris under Jules J. Lefebvre and Gustave R. C. Boulanger, at Julien's academy, and also anatomy at the École des beaux arts. Among his works, mainly landscapes and cattle-pieces, are "After the Shower" (1876); "Clearing up" (1877); "More Wind than Rain," in Woburn public library (1885); and "Changing Pasture" and "An October Afternoon" (1886). He is the author of "Principles of Perspective" (Boston, 1878).

THOMPSON, Alexander Ramsay, soldier, b. in 1794; d. in Manatee county, Fla., 25 Dec., 1837. His father was Alexander Thompson, who served in the artillery during the Revolutionary war, was retained as captain in the peace establishment, and attached in 1794 to the artillery and engineer corps, and after his discharge in 1802 till his death, 28 Sept., 1809, was military store-keeper at West Point. The son was graduated at the U. S. military academy in 1812, and during the war with Great Britain took part in Gen. James Wilkinson's expedition down the St. Lawrence and in the defence of Plattsburg and other operations on Lake Champlain, being promoted captain of infantry on 1 May, 1814. He was retained on the reduction of the army, promoted major on 4 April, 1832, served in the Black Hawk expedition, became lieutenant-colonel on 6 Sept., 1837, and in the war with the Seminole Indians was killed at the battle of Okechobee while leading his regiment in a desperate charge.—His nephew, Alexander Ramsay, clergyman, b. in New York city, 16 Oct., 1822, was graduated at the University of the city of New York in 1842, and at Princeton theological seminary in 1845, and was ordained, and after holding various charges became pastor of the Presbyterian church in Stapleton, Staten island, in 1851-'9, the Reformed Dutch church, 21st street, New York city, in 1862-'73, first as colleague of the Rev. George W. Bethune, then as his successor, and the North Reformed Dutch church in Brooklyn, N. Y., from the latter date to 1884. In 1885 he became acting pastor of Bethany chapel in Brooklyn. He was chaplain of the New England hospital in 1863-'5 and of the Roosevelt hospital in New York from 1873 till 1884. The degree of D. D. was conferred on him by the University of the city of New York in 1865, which made him a member of its council in 1872. Among various sermons he published "Tribute to the Memory of the Rev. George W. Bethune"; "Casting down Imaginations," a sermon (1874); "Christian Patriotism: the Points of Similarity between the Struggle for Independence in America and that of our Holland Ancestors," in "Centennial Discourses" (1876). He also assisted in compiling "Hymns of the Church" (New York, 1869), and "Hymns of Prayer and Praise" (1874).

THOMPSON, Alfred Wordsworth, artist, b. in Baltimore, Md., 27 May, 1840. During 1862-'4 he studied in Paris, first under Charles Gleyre, and later with Albert Pasini and in the École des beaux arts. He first exhibited at the salon in 1865, and in 1868 returned to the United States, settling in New York. He was elected an associate member of the National academy in 1873, and an academician two years later, and in 1877 became a member of the Society of American artists. He has travelled at various times in all parts of Europe, Asia Minor, and northern Africa, and his pictures cover a wide range of subjects, Oriental and American, including landscapes, genre pieces and military scenes. They include "Desolation" and "Lost in the Forest" (1872); "Annapolis in 1776," owned by the Buffalo fine arts academy, and "A Twilight in Corsica" (1875); "Review at Philadelphia, 1777" (1878); "The Market-Place in Biskra" (1884); "The Hour of Prayer"; "Returning from a Boar Hunt, Tangier"; "The Advance of the Enemy" (1885); "The Departure for the War, 1776"; and "A Sabbath-Day in Troubled Times." To the Paris exposition of 1878 he sent "The School-House on the Hill."

THOMPSON, Augustus Charles, clergyman, b. in Goshen, Conn., 30 April, 1812. He entered Yale with the class of 1835, but feeble health compelled him to leave before graduation. The college gave him the honorary degree of A. M. in 1841. He was graduated at the Hartford theological seminary in 1838, studied in the University of Berlin in 1838-'9, and on 27 July, 1842, was ordained pastor of a Congregational church at Roxbury, Mass., where he still remains. He was associated with Rev. Dr. Rufus Anderson in a deputation to the missions of the American board in India in 1854-'5, and was a delegate to the London missionary conference of 1878. Amherst gave him the degree of D. D. in 1860. Dr. Thompson has lectured on foreign missions at Andover seminary in 1877-'80, at Boston university in 1882, and at Hartford theological seminary in

May 23, 1838 Obituary for Alexander Ramsey Thompson

“The remains of the late...,” database, Evening Post (New York), May 23, 1838, 3.

<https://www.newspapers.com/article/the-evening-post-obituary-for-alex-r-t/113951608/>

This article details the transportation of the remains of Col. Alex. R. Thompson following his death in battle in Florida in December, 1837. The article also includes a brief detailing of funeral arrangements and the surviving relatives of Col. Thompson.

ference and modesty, respectfully state to the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives, that her application is founded upon the estimation in which she holds the length of service, the amount of extra duty performed by her late husband, the fact that just rewards have been meted to the surviving officers engaged in that battle (by conferring on them here-to) wherein her lamented husband lost his life, which battle has been considered a victory, and a great advantage gained over the enemy, together with the seemingly imperative necessities of the service, which prevented Colonel T. from making a better provision for his family, when he would have done so otherwise; all seem to present an inducement for, and justify, her present application.

And she now asks most respectfully, under a high apprehension of the liberality for which the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives are so eminently distinguished in every just cause, in the confidence of hope, and in the anticipation of the kind consideration in which they will view this memorial, so most respectfully induced, she would ask of the honorable Senate and House of Representatives, that they will pass a bill for her relief.

MARY W. THOMPSON.

THE SYMPICOMETER.—In the course of the passage of the Royal Adelaide from London, on Monday, when off the Hamble she encountered a tremendous hurricane. The Captain observed indications of its approach some time before it came on, by the operations of the Sympicometer, or new air barometer, invented by Messrs. Adie & Son, Prince Street. The fluid in this useful instrument was previously very low, being at 28; but at daybreak on Monday it fell to 27 deg. 45 min., being lower than was ever before known in these latitudes. The Captain, apprehending a severe gale, got every thing secured; and it was fortunate he did so; for about seven in the morning it began to blow with the utmost fury from N. by W. Both the sea and sky assumed a terrific appearance, and the atmosphere became so dark that it was impossible to see farther than fifty yards from the ship, so that the few vessels that were close to the Adelaide were entirely lost sight of. Soon after the hurricane commenced, the Sympicometer began to rise, which was taken as an indication of an approaching calm, though the most experienced eye could not detect any such signs in the atmosphere. The accuracy of the glass was, however, proved by the termination of the hurricane about ten o'clock, when the weather cleared up and continued fine till the vessel reached Leith.—Edinburgh's Courier.

PORTSMOUTH, (ENG.) Nov. 21, 1838.—The seamanship of H. M. S. Excellent have been practicing during this month on the old Prince George (formerly the sheer hulk in this harbor, and which has been moored for the purpose near Porchester Lake) with the round hollow-shot now so much in vogue. It is stated that the motive is to try the different ranges, and ascertain what damage will accrue when that description of shot is fired at ship timber; they have knocked some holes in her sides, &c., and she grounded by the head in consequence; this put a temporary stop to the firing, as it took a week to pump her dry, raise, and re-moor her, for a repetition of the work. The gunners are to commence in a few days this new and experimental system. It is stated that every vessel in the fleet is in future to be supplied with some of the guns, and that rounds are to be fitted for the shot and ammunition; certainly in ships of the line that is the case. The Illustrated, Benbow, Gangue, and Revenge, now in this harbor, have such erections. The firing hiberno has been with shot; when the live shells are to be fired at the Prince George, the boats of the Victory and ships in ordinary are to be stationed in a proper position, with fire engines, buckets, ladders, &c., to put out the flames, should she take fire; and the carpenters are to be in attendance, and prepared to stop up the shuttles, and make good any damage that may occur in their department—thus making themselves thoroughly acquainted in harbor with what may occur in another place. As the French, Russian, and Dutch navies have introduced into their ships the guns adapted for the large hollow shot, the system adopted on board the Excellent as a prelude to general use in the British navy, is considered absolutely necessary, and is said by competent judges to be a very proper measure.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

LINES ADDRESSED TO LIEUT. COL.

LATE OF THE ARMY IN FLORIDA.

"I will not trust in my bow, neither shall my sword save me."—King David.

Trust not, Oh soldier, to thy sword,
Though sheer and bright it be!
Another hand may seize its hilt,
And turn the point on thee.
Trust not the arrow's fatal spring,
That brings to earth thy foe;
Another way thy heart's blood wring,
And by thee also low

Could not in thy noble steed,
With hot war-temper gift,
Who, in thy utmost hour of need,
Thou, from his back may lift.
Repose not in that ready skill,
Which science gives her son;
She too has man his bow to kill,
And loads the deed when done.

But thou, when duty calls thee forth,
To aid thy country's cause,
Take to thy breast the Christian's shield—
And seek for Heaven's applause.
A thousand at thy side may fall—
Ten thousand more they reel;
But God's own sword off shaft and ball,
And point of polished steel.

He'll aid thee to perform thy part,
And give thee needful skill;
He'll guard thy form—protect thy heart,
If such His holy will.

But, if so be—that dangers press,
And death should come to thee;
Remember Christ, thy Righteousness,
Thy crown of victory.

M. W. T.

THE TROOPER TO HIS DEAD HORSE.

Thy earthly course was bravely run,
And thou art dead, my noble steed!
The duties of a friend were done,
Thou wert the soldier's friend indeed!
That flashing eye, that lofty head,
Are dim, and spiritless, and dead,
And stiffened are thy limbs of speed.

Oh! if the bugle's thrilling blast,
With war's calling voice, influence rife,
Could usher back the moments past,
And raise the stumbling dead to life,
How quickly wouldst thou prance again,
And limbs, and nerves, and sinews strain,
To taste the raptures of the strife!

Farewell my steed, the western storm,
With music harsh, and sad and drear,
Will whistle o'er thy mouldering form,
And howl its anthem o'er thy bier;
The paucity's fangs shall harm thee not,
The prairie wolf shall pass the spot,
Too noble game for him lies here.
