A Bradenton Herald article published March 17, 1949 focuses on Whidden’s death overseas and his subsequent burial at a national cemetery in Florida. This article explains the larger event of the bodies of soldiers who died overseas being brought back to the United States after the war. This article explains Whidden was killed in Germany April 20, 1945 after being reported MIA on March 26, 1945. He then got back to his outfit, but was KIA shortly after. The article then goes on to list the relatives he is survived by.
